

LICENSED INDUSTRY OVERVIEW: TRAVEL AGENTS AND WHOLESALERS IN BC

OVERVIEW

In British Columbia, travel agents and wholesalers operating in the province are required to be licensed by Consumer Protection BC and make contributions to the Travel Assurance Fund (TAF). The TAF is a possible source of compensation if a consumer doesn't get the travel services they bought and is only available if they booked with a licensed agent or wholesaler. It is important to know that the licensing requirement of BC travel agents and wholesalers extends to online businesses based within the province, too.

THE TRAVEL AGENT AND WHOLESALER LAW IN BC

BC's laws that speak to travel agents and wholesalers, the Business Practices and Consumer Protection Act and the Travel Industry Regulation, exist to protect consumers by safeguarding consumer money, ensuring the sector operates by certain standards and providing added protection through the Travel Assurance Fund. The travel laws administered by Consumer Protection BC do not address instances when consumers voluntarily cancel travel services, or when consumers are unhappy with the quality of service.

CONSUMER TIPS

1. Check licensing status. By law, anyone offering travel services in BC (either as an agent or as a wholesaler) must be licensed. Visit the Consumer Protection website to research a business's licensing status.
2. Get a receipt. By law, you must receive a receipt from your travel agent or wholesaler that includes the amount received, an itemized purchase price for the travel services to be supplied and the conditions for reimbursement. Also, we encourage you to make sure that you can read the content of the receipt if it is handwritten.
3. Keep proof of payment documentation. Ask for (and keep!) documentation for your travel services. This could include receipts, contracts, itineraries, boarding passes, hotel vouchers and more.
